32.—(1) Subject to the other provisions of this regulation and of regulation 34, the number of weeks over which a payment other than a periodical payment shall be taken into account shall be equal to the number obtained (and any fraction shall be treated as a corresponding fraction of a week) by dividing that payment by the difference between—

- (a) the standard rate for the resident's accommodation; and
- (b) the lower rate for that accommodation which he would have been liable to pay if he had not received that payment.

(2) Subject to paragraph (4), where—

- (a) a liable relative makes a periodical payment and any other payment concurrently; and
- (b) the weekly amount of the periodical payment, as calculated in accordance with regulation 33, is less than the divisor referred to in paragraph (1), the number of weeks over which the payment other than the periodical payment shall be taken into account shall be equal to the apposite number of weeks calculated by the method prescribed in paragraph (3).

(3) The apposite number of weeks referred to in paragraph (2) shall be the number obtained (and any fraction shall be treated as a corresponding fraction of a week) by dividing the amount of the other payment by the difference between—

- (a) the standard rate for the resident's accommodation; and

4.—(1) Subject to sub-paragraph (2) and paragraph 5, this Part of this Schedule applies to any resident who—

- (a) on 11th April 1993 is in, or temporarily absent from, accommodation provided under Part III of the Act other than that provided under section 29(4)(c) of the Act (provision of hostels where persons for whom welfare services are provided may live); and
- (b) was in, or temporarily absent from, such accommodation immediately before these Regulations came into force.

(2) This Part of this Schedule shall apply to such a resident only if on 11th April 1993 he—

- (a) qualifies, or would qualify if he were not temporarily absent from such accommodation, for any of the disregards under the old rules and the aggregated weekly total of any such disregards is, or would be, more than £1 higher than the aggregated weekly total of the disregards for which he would qualify under the new rules; or
- (b) is in possession of capital in excess of or equal to the amount referred to in regulation 20 (capital limit).

5. This Part of this Schedule shall not apply to—

- (a) less dependent residents; or
- (b) residents who on 11th April 1993 are paying for their accommodation at the standard rate or who would be paying for it at that rate if they were not temporarily absent from their accommodation.

6.—(1) Subject to paragraph (2), the liability of a resident to whom this Part of this Schedule applies to pay for his accommodation shall in respect of the week beginning 12th April 1993 be assessed both in accordance with the new rules and in accordance with the old rules.

(2) If a resident is temporarily absent from the accommodation provided for him under Part III of the Act during the week beginning 12th April 1993, he shall be assessed both in accordance with the new rules and in accordance with the old rules in respect of the first full week after his return to that accommodation.

(3) If a resident is assessed under the old rules as liable to pay for his accommodation a charge which is lower than the charge which he is assessed as liable to pay for his accommodation under the new rules, then for the purposes of assessing his ability to pay for his accommodation, the old rules shall, subject to the following provisions of this Part of this Schedule, continue to apply to that resident from 12th April 1993.

7.—(1) Subject to paragraph 9, following the projected review of income support for the tax year 1994—1995 in accordance with section 150 of the Administration Act(43) (annual up-rating of benefits) and any consequential order up-rating income support made under that section, a resident's protected amount shall be increased by 33 per cent of the difference between—

- (a) the amount which in respect of the first full week after the date on which that order comes into force(44) he would be liable to pay for his accommodation in accordance with the new rules; and

- (a) the amount which in respect of the first full week after the date on which that order comes into force he would be liable to pay for his accommodation in accordance with the new rules; and
- (b) his protected amount as redetermined in accordance with sub-paragraph (1) or in accordance with paragraph 8.

(3) Following the projected review of income support for the tax year 1996—1997 in accordance with section 150 of the Administration Act and any consequential order up-rating income support made under that section, the provisions of this Part of this Schedule shall cease to apply in all cases on the date on which that order comes into force.

(4) If in relation to any of sub-paragraphs (1) to (3) no up-rating order is made in a relevant tax year, the reference in the relevant sub-paragraph to the date of an order coming into force shall be construed as a reference to the first Monday in the tax year referred to in that sub-paragraph.

8.—(1) Subject to the following provisions of this paragraph, once a resident has been assessed as liable to pay a protected amount for his accommodation, any increase in his income or capital shall not affect the level of his protected amount.

(2) When a resident's protected amount is redetermined in accordance with paragraph 7, any increase in his income or capital shall be taken into consideration for the purposes of any calculation under the new rules which is made for the purposes of that paragraph.

(3) If a resident's resources are increased by—

- (a) any income such as is mentioned in regulation 17(4); or
- (b) any payment of capital such as is mentioned in regulation 25(4), in respect of the first full week after that increase in his resources, that resident shall be assessed both in accordance with the new rules and in accordance with the old rules, and paragraphs (4) to (7) shall apply.

(4) If the charge which the resident is assessed as liable to pay under the old rules is lower than the charge which he is assessed as liable to pay under the new rules, for the purposes of assessing his ability to pay for his accommodation, the old rules shall continue to apply to him and his new protected amount shall, subject to sub-paragraphs (5) and (6), be the amount which he is assessed under the old rules as liable to pay for his accommodation.

(6) If the two assessments referred to in sub-paragraph (3) are carried out during the tax year 1995—1996, the resident's new protected amount determined in accordance with paragraph (4) shall be increased by 66 per cent of the difference between the charges determined in accordance with those two assessments unless those assessments are carried out before an order up-rating income support made under section 150 of the Administration Act has come into force during that tax year, in which case the increase shall be 33 per cent of that difference.

(7) If the charge which a resident is assessed under the new rules as liable to pay for his accommodation in accordance with sub-paragraph (3) is equal to or lower than the charge which he is assessed as liable to pay under the old rules, the provisions of this Part of this Schedule shall cease to apply to that resident from the date of the increase in resources which led to those assessments.

9. Once a resident has been assessed as liable to pay a protected amount for his accommodation, if on any date—

- (a) because of a reduction in his income or capital; or
- (b) as a result of a redetermination of his protected amount in accordance with paragraph 7, the charge that he would be liable to pay in accordance with the new rules exceeds his protected amount by less than £1 or is equal to or lower than his protected amount, the provisions of this Part of this Schedule shall cease to apply to him from that date.

10. Once a resident has been assessed as liable to pay a protected amount for his accommodation, if a local authority arranges different accommodation for him under Part III of the Act, the provisions of this Part of this Schedule shall, notwithstanding those different arrangements, continue to apply to him as if he had continued to live in the accommodation where he was first assessed in accordance with the provisions in this Part of this Schedule.

11. If a resident who has been assessed as liable to pay a protected amount for his accommodation is temporarily absent from his accommodation, a local authority shall continue to allow him to pay a protected amount for that accommodation on his return.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Regulations)

These Regulations are the first regulations made under section 22(5) of the National Assistance Act 1948. They make similar provision for the assessment by local authorities of the resources of residents in accommodation arranged under Part III of the 1948 Act, the Social Work (Scotland) Act 1968 or section 7 of the Mental Health (Scotland) Act 1984, to the provision made under the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987 for the assessment of the resources of a claimant for income support—and many provisions of the 1987 Regulations are applied directly.

The assessment rules contained in Part III of Schedule 1 to the Supplementary Benefits Act 1976 (as it had effect immediately before the amendments made by Schedule 2 to the Social Security Act 1980) which were transitionally preserved for the purposes of the National Assistance Act 1948, will cease to have effect, subject to the transitional protection offered for existing residents in Schedule 1 to these Regulations.

Part I of these Regulations contains general provisions relating to assessments of a resident's ability to pay. These include a provision relating to the special treatment of less dependent residents (regulation 5).

Part II contains the provisions for the calculation of a resident's income. There is a general provision for how all income should be calculated on a weekly basis (regulation 9), and specific provisions for the calculation of the income of both employed and self-employed earners, and for the calculation of income other than earnings (regulations 10 to 19).

Part III contains the provisions for the calculation of a resident's capital, including setting a capital limit above which a resident is not entitled to be assessed as unable to pay for accommodation (regulation 20), which is aligned directly with the income support scheme. This Part also includes provisions relating to the calculation of notional capital (regulations 25 and 26), and the weekly tariff income from capital (regulation 28).

Part IV contains the special provisions in relation to the calculation of periodical and other payments made by liable relatives, and Part V makes special provision in relation to calculating the resources of students.
